The inclusion in this list confirms the importance of the palace and its gardens as a Baroque ensemble. In the possession of the Habsburg dynasty since Maximilian II, as former court property the palace passed to the ownership of the Republic of Austria at the end of the monarchy in 1918 and was administered by the Schlosshauptmannschaft SchÄ¶nbrunn (a local government body) until 1992. In 1992 Schloss SchÄ¶nbrunn Kultur- und Betriebsges.m.b.H. was founded and entrusted with the administration of the palace as a limited-liability company solely owned by the Republic of Austria. The company's corporate mission embraces the tasks of preservation, utilization and finance: the funding for the preservation of the historic fabric of the palace and garden monuments, together with the revitalization of the entire SchÄ¶nbrunn complex, has to be generated from the company's own resources without recourse to state subsidies. On our first day in Vienna, we jumped right in and set off to SchÄ¶nbrunn Palace, looking to experience the imperial nostalgia Vienna is famous for. SchÄ¶nbrunn Palace is a UNESCO World Heritage Site and Austria's most visited tourist attraction. For centuries the palace served as the summer home of the Habsburgs, and to this day reflects the interests and tastes of the Habsburg monarchs. SchÄ¶nbrunn is considered to be one of Europe's most impressive Baroque palace complexes and Austria's most significant cultural monument. History of SchÄ¶nbrunn Palace The SchÄ¶nbrunn estate came into Habsburg possession in 1569 through Maximilian II. It passed to many successors, who did little more than use it as a hunting ground. The creation of SchÄ¶nbrunn Palace can be Emperor Leopold I. In 1693, he commissioned the Baroque architect Johann Bernhard Fischer von Erlach, who built a great hunting shelter for his son, and heir to the throne, Josä © I. Unfortunately, he suddenly died in 1711 before the Palace was finished, stopping the construction for many years. The unfinished palace became the residence of Josä ©'s widow, Wilhelmine Amalie, until Emperor Carlos VI acquired SchÄ¶nbrunn in 1728. Eventually, Charles gave the palace to his daughter María Teresa, who had a hobby for him Palace and its gardens. Upon in the rain! Under the influence of Maria Theresa, the jam hunting hostel was extended to a palatial residence. SchÄ¶nbrunn the palace soon became the center of the court and the political life. Since then, the Palace has welcomed many of the main statesmen in Europe. The property of the SchÄ¶nbrunn Palace was passed to the replacement of Austria at the end of the monarchy in 1918. Our visit to the Palace of SchÄ¶nbrunn decided to buy the classic pass that included the € grand tour of the palace SchÄ¶nbrunn. We pass through 40 autostically furnished rooms, including the rooms of the state and the private apartments of Franz Joseph and his wife Elizabeth, or Sisi as it was called comén. As we expected, many of the rooms were luxurious, but some were surprisingly insufficient. Audio guide said that Franz Joseph liked to live more modestly than other kings. While we walked through the SchÄ¶nbrunn palace, we could not help comparing it with the Versailles Palace. Mike continued calling him € oemini versals€ But it didn't seem so impressed with him as Versailles was. I thought the palace was pleasant, but notably less extravagant than Versailles. It is actually strange that I thought that because the most interesting room for me was called the € oemillones. The room was covered with rare palisander wooden boards, decorated with 60 Rococo cartridges. The framed framed cartridges miniatures, showing scenes of the life of Mongol rulers in India. It was very unique! Another living room that we saw during our tour of the SchÄ¶nbrunn palace was the great gallery, a 40 -meter long rococo salon that was used for banquets, balls and receptions. The gallery was decorated with crystal mirrors, fresh roof and golden aramon. The high windows that surrounded the hall gave the room some extra shine! While our visit was pleasant, and the interior was beautiful, the palace did not leave too much of a lasting print. Maybe it is because we had already visited some palaces on this trip to Europe. Or maybe it is because they did not allow me to take photos, which always disappoints me and sometimes even makes me a little gruit. After our tour of the palace we went to explore the gardens of SchÄ¶nbrunn. Gardens are always my favorite part of the palaces! SchÄ¶nbrunn Gardens The public was first received in the park in SchÄ¶nbrunn Palace around 1779. It is a large area (1.2 kilos to the east and west and a kilometer to the north and south) with many different different characteristics , which makes it the perfect recreational area for visitors and local. The garden of the heir pride The palace looks towards a wide path, called the great parterre. The gravamen path is broken by eight sections of manicated and simys, known as the heir pride. At the end of the catwalk it is the crowning element of the great parterre- the Neptune source. Neptune that leads to the sea is a common motive in the art of the 16th to the eighteenth century. Symbolizes monarchs controlling the fate of their nations. More than that, you will see a vast inclined code that leads the way to the roundabout. Go to the top and be rewarded with a great view of the palace and the city.
